Pricing reflects the full scope of the work – not just the sessions on your calendar. Between every session, Cari is listening to what you've sent, reviewing your progress, refining your customized plan, and carrying your development with her across the year. That work is built into the program – not billed by the hour – and it is part of why private mentorship with Cari is a singular relationship, not a session package.

You can't put a price on someone or something that projects success from the depths of their heart and soul. She never stops giving. "Cari is one of the most authentic and spiritual person I have met in music. Her attention to detail, ability to profoundly understand, and genuinely care for her students is astonishing. She understands the complexity of being an artist (being one herself) and provides helpful insights and solutions. If you care about making an impact and being happy along the way, I highly suggest you work with this lifeline. Being richly supported is oxygen to creatives. Thank you, Cari."

What artists say.

Cari is truly a one of a kind, rare diamond in the music industry and in the very saturated field of people claiming to care about artists. Cari is passionate, cares deeply and invests herself wholeheartedly in helping the artists she serves and walks with. Her support and guidance to me were invaluable in the making of and release of my last record, and in setting me on course to establish the solid foundation needed to build the career and business I've been dreaming of for a long time. Cari gave generously of her wisdom, her insight, and her lived experience as an artist and world renowned voice coach in helping me up my vocal technique prior to recording, in honing in on and shaping the sonic direction for the record using her A & R skills and process, and in creating my best work to date. She also played an instrumental role in guiding and walking with me through the marketing strategy, execution and release of the singles and the album, and in bringing together the right team to make it all happen at a level above anything I've done previously. I am eternally grateful for all that I gained from our work together and for the ongoing support and championing of my artistry that Cari has brought. She has been a dream come true ally, team member and guide along my artist path and I would highly recommend Cari's mentoring, voice coaching, A & R process and all that she offers to any artist. Without a doubt one of the best investments I've made in myself, my artistry and my business. Thank you, Cari. For all that you do for all the artists you so devotedly serve.

About Cari Cole

Cari Cole is the creator of The Cole Vocal Method™ – a master holistic biomechanical voice-building system developed over forty years from a lineage that began at the Metropolitan Opera. Her clients have performed at the Grammys, American Idol, The Voice, NPR Tiny Desk, the CMT Awards, and the Americana Music Awards.

She is a voting member of The Recording Academy, has taught at Columbia University and NYU, and has spent over three decades building world-class artists from New York City.

Cari is also the CEO and Founder of Cari Cole Voice & Music Co., a female-owned and operated music company empowering artists and musicians for over 35 years. Her latest venture, CCVM, is a newly structured music label services company providing artists with a seamless path from creation to completion.

The window is now.

Private training with Cari Cole is among the most sought-after and limited offerings in the music industry. Cari works with a small number of singers each year – selected specifically because they are serious, committed, and ready to build something world-class. This is not a program that scales. It is a singular relationship with one of the most trusted ears and minds in the business.

What makes this even rarer: there are more years behind Cari than ahead of her in the private studio. She is at the absolute peak of her mastery – 40 years deep, with more insight in a single session than most singers encounter in a decade of training. But this chapter has a natural horizon. At some point – she doesn't know exactly when – she will step back from private training to do the greater legacy work only she can do: the books, the next generation of CVM coaches, the resources that carry this method forward long after the private doors close. When that happens, direct access to Cari ends. There will be no waitlist that reopens. There will be no next cohort.

If you have ever considered working with her privately, the window is now. Not because of a launch deadline or a marketing countdown – but because this is genuinely, quietly, one of the last seasons she will offer this. The singers who say yes now will be among the last to have had Cari Cole entirely to themselves for a year.

Your next step.

She is looking for serious singers who want to build magnificent artistry, step fully into their artist identity, and stop leaving their music to chance. If that is you, apply. The door is open. For now.
